

Golf Balls Sparkle in the Rough When Jewellers Play at Wykagyl

Secretary of Their Association
Amuses Players by Handicaps
He Provides for Them.

By William Abbott.

GOLFERS in the rough were fifty members of the Metropolitan Jewellers' Golf Association, who competed yesterday at the Wykagyl links as the setting for a one-day tournament. Most contestants took heavy exercise escaping from traps, bunkers and rough grass that fortify the New Rochelle course, but their faces glowed like a Belosue sunset when it was seen that handicaps imposed by Secretary Eddie Hodges had stymied the hopes of the association's star players to win any of the handsome prizes.

The association members decided to play outdoors after playing the game long time around luncheon tables. A first meet was held last spring at Englewood. Wykagyl was selected for the second tournament. After looking several million dollars worth of silver and precious stones in vaults some of New York's most prominent jewellers covered a one-day strike and spent yesterday at Wykagyl trying to play rings around Col. Bogey. When the day's doings are fully chronicled the jewelry folk will have enough golf conversation for the coming winter. The most talked about man will easily be Eddie Hodges, secretary of the association, who doped out the handicaps. The genial secretary had just returned from a fishing trip off Long Island, when he caught 300 weakfish in three days, but this isn't anything to what the official handicapper will catch from his fellow craftsmen when different stroke ratings are compared.

The Hodges system of handicapping was as free of nourishment for the association's leading golfers as was Mother Hubbard's well known cupboard. There's the case of Alfred Morell, President of the association and a rattling good golfer. Mr. Morell is a wicked wielder of golf clubs. Why, down at Palm Beach last winter he defeated Miss Elaine Rosenthal, only using a putter all the way around, and Miss Rosenthal, with the strongest of feminine players, Mr. Morell shot around Wykagyl yesterday in the sixties, but missed the prize winning shot because of big handicaps given to others.

Harry Cox, the Kohinoor golfer of the association, who won the Englewood tournament, was another victim of handicaps and dropped short of winning positions. Much was expected of Ed Donaldson, whose brogues outnumber all other members, but Mr. Donaldson's feet gave firm stance for many heroic recoveries from trouble on his two rounds.

Harry McMahon, who plays a good game at Schuylkill, was somewhat off form, but he attributed this to lack of concentration caused by the recording of many bets made on route with Howard Kennedy, Bill Donaldson and Alfred Morell, members of his foursome.

Of course it was only proper that Charles Evans should capture a prize. This ambitious club swinger upheld the traditions created by Charles

EVENING WORLD'S OWN SPORT HISTORY

FOOTBALL. NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 29.—The Yale varsity football eleven lined up for scrimmage with a new set of tactics. Walker and Kirkpatrick gave way to Calhoun and Bassett, both sophomores, who have had only preparatory school experience. Both played guard on prep school teams. Calhoun at Hotchkiss and Bassett at Taft.

Columbia's varsity football squad took the field badly crippled yesterday. Three of the star members of the squad, Jack Kennedy, left end and Captain-elect of the 1918 eleven, Grace, who was a substitute and last season on the S. A. T. C. team, and Canapery, another veteran who distinguished himself on the S. A. T. C. eleven, were all forced to remain out of the practice because of injuries sustained in the gruelling scrimmage through which Dawson put the squad on Saturday.

PHILADELPHIA, N. Y., Sept. 30.—Paul Miller, guard on the 1915 and 1916 Cornell football teams, reported to the Cornell football eleven. He is the second 1916 regular to report, the other being Capt. Silverick. No others are expected.

MIDDELTOWN, Conn., Sept. 30.—Pick Ewell, who coached the New York University football team in the early days of the war, was out on the field at Wesleyan to help Linton with the men.

SHANTON FISH - WYKAGYL C.C.

Two explorers ventured out on their initial journey of the links, Yard staggering in with 188 strokes and his partner accounting for 161. This might seem like the limit for stroking, but the rarest feat was performed by a foursome made up of A. J. Casso, Perry Lucas, N. W. Knapp and C. E. Bettengate, who actually started from the first tee, strolled out of sight of the clubhouse and never returned. No one knows their whereabouts as the foursome never reported at the clubhouse.

Prizes were awarded to the lowest gross scores for 36 holes. With handicaps carefully deleted the prize winners and leading scores are as follows: Fred Skinner, 134; C. W. Sumner, 135; Fred Clark, 142; Walter Scher, 143; Robert Kirkpatrick, 147; Wesley Dinger, 148; C. E. Cavey, 149; Charles Evans, 153; J. D. Beacham, 155; E. N. Hodges, 159; C. B. Blockman, 160; Joseph Carr, 161; Lemmy Russell, 162; Roy Johnson, 162; L. Miller, 163, and L. Lawton, 165.

Following the tournament there was a banquet and vaudeville entertainment in the clubhouse.
